Editorial

The decision to unseat the County Town may have been different if it wasn't made in haste. The county should reconsider its plan to move its offices to the 'central' location at the Allsaw flats. Please see page 4.

Opposing the move

In a token bid to discourage the the county from moving its offices out of the village, Minden councillors have rejected a request to waive an outdated condition on the new property. Please see page 7.

Looking for a home

Afraid of the consequences of returning to his homeland, a 27-year-old El Salvador man is struggling to become a Canadian citizen with the support of several Minden residents. Please see page 10.

The final chapter of Marjorie Bowker's analysis of the Meech Lake Accord examines the consequences of rejecting this constitutional document. Please see page 22.

Climbing the corporate ladder can be as easy as pie if you do it by the book. And that's just what Glen Carter's character in the latest Highlands Little Theatre production intends to do. Romance and nepotism won't stand in the way of his success as he follows the simple pattern laid out in his 'how-to' book. Seen here, Wayne Cooper, who plays the bosses' nephew Bud Frump, celebrates his promotion. The celebration is short lived, though, as he soon discovers that Carter has leap-frogged past him on the road to success. The Broadway musical 'How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying' opens this Thursday at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School. The performance, which is being directed by Nancy Robichaud runs for three nights only—Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The show begins at 8 p.m. Advance tickets at $7 or $8 at the door.

School costs up 19%

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Haliburton County Board of Education has passed its 1990 budget, calling for a 19 per cent increase in the amount raised through local property taxes.

Decreased funding from the provincial government and the added cost of adhering to new Ministry of Education initiatives are being blamed for much of the increase.

The increase in local mill rates will vary from municipality to municipality from an estimated high of about 20 per cent in Lutterworth to an estimated low of about 10 per cent in Bicroft.

This fluctuation in mill rates is a result of the province equalizing the tax burden across the county. This is the third year of a five-year phase-in period.

This year, provincial funding will account for just 32 per cent of the board's overall budget. The level of funding to Haliburton County has dropped by five per cent over the last two years.

New group to protect lake levels

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

A new association has been formed to deal with the issue of water levels in Haliburton County's reservoir lakes.

The organization, called The Trent-Severn Reservoir Lakes Council, is made up of representatives from lake associations in the Trent-Severn watershed.

The council was formed at the April 21 meeting of the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Associations (FOCA) held in Scarborough.

Bill Brown, president of the Hawk/Halls Lake cottager's association presented the idea to members of other reservoir lake associations.

He said the goal of the council will be to "develop a more equitable system of sharing water between the watershed and the (Trent-Severn) waterway."

"The Trent-Severn Waterway has a singular mandate. That is to maintain requisite water levels in waterways to the south," said Brown.

"And they take whatever they need from our lakes to do that."

Brown said Parks Canada, which manages the waterway, "takes no account of the needs of the municipalities in the reservoir lakes system" and Superintendent John Lewis is "not interested in listening to cottage associations."

The Haliburton Highlands Water Levels Management Advisory Committee (HHWLMAC) is given the task of "managing the water that the Trent-Severn leaves us," said Brown.

One of the things Brown would like to accomplish is a re-examination of the system for determining how much water is drained from each reservoir lake. "There has never been any rational mechanism for looking at the tolerance levels for the lakes," he said.

Recently Brown has been involved with trying to have a seven foot drawdown limit placed on the Hawk/Halls lake chain. His efforts have been rebuked by both the HHWLMC and County Council with the argument that a drawdown limit on only those lakes would be contrary to the current system of equalized draw down on all lakes.

But Brown said that the equalized drawdown is based on a percentage of the reservoir capacity each lake and that the reservoir capacities were decided upon arbitrarily.

Another issue that Brown said has to be dealt with is the 1905 Order in Council, which transferred control of the waterway from the provincial to the federal government.

The Order, said Brown, "buffers our ability to change the waterway's mandate."

In trying to find a resolution to the problem of low water levels in the reservoir lakes, local representatives have appealed to both the provincial and federal governments. But Brown noted that so far little has been accomplished.

Provincial support drops, local costs rise

"More and more of the cost of running our schools must be picked up by the local taxpayer," said the board's business administrator Jim Bradley, at last Tuesday's meeting. "The decrease in the provincial grant from 1989 to 1990 cost the local taxpayer over $200,000, or 2.5 per cent of the overall tax increase."

Bradley outlined the impact that province-wide initiatives are having on the board's budget.

The Ministry is trying to cut class sizes for Grades One and Two from an average of 24.6 students per class in 1988 down to 20 students per class in 1990.

"This has cost our board five additional teachers plus classroom space," said Bradley. "While there is funding for reaching these targets, it does not cover the full cost to the board."

Because the board is required to provide preparation time to the teachers, for every seven teachers the board hires, it must hire one additional teacher to cover this preparation time.

The new Ontario Employer Health Tax, which went into effect January 1 to replace OHIP premiums will cost the board an additional $125,000 in 1990, said Bradley.

Pay Equity is also taking its toll on the board's payroll. "Although the board supports the principles addressed by pay equity, we are concerned with the impact it may have on salary costs," said Bradley. In 1990 the estimated cost of the pay equity program is $80,000.

Haliburton County is currently experiencing a substantial growth in the student population and the board has had to respond by providing more teachers and classroom spaces.

To meet the needs of increased enrolment the board has to purchase four new portables this year with a combined price tag of $100,000. Added to that is the cost of leasing seven classroom spaces in the Minden and Haliburton villages and paying $110,000 in debt costs for the new Library Resource Centre at the High School.

To staff these additional spaces the board is hiring nine new teachers for the elementary section at a cost of $180,000.

Other big ticket items reflected in this year's budget include a $50,000 asbestos survey for local schools, a $75,000 parking lot at the High School to replace space lost to the new library, and $30,000 to provide a Transitional Class which is taking the place of the Section 25 class formally run in conjunction with Kinark Child and Family Services.

In Anson, Hindon and Minden the average house, assessed at $1,400 will pay an additional $80 in education taxes this year. An average house in Dysart et al, assessed at $700 will pay an additional $55.

"The board is budgeting for a 16 per cent increase in expenditures," said Bradley. "The initiatives and special projects account for 50 per cent, or $1 million, of this increase."

Cottagers fight for water management

"The federal government is happy with things the way they are," said Brown. "They have enough water for their mandate."

And it seems as if the provincial government "is not interested in getting involved."

That has left local governments with the task of dealing with the issue for 30 years and Brown says it appears as though they have "given up in despair."

"There will be no change unless we work together with local and county councils," said Brown.

Having outlined the problem, Brown presented two motions for the cottagers to consider. The first dealt with forming the Reservoir Lakes Council and the second with choosing representatives to sit on the new association.

The general objectives of the council include;

- * Developing an organizational structure to insure all cottagers associations in the Trent watershed are represented and consulted,

- * Developing policies and goals which reflect the common interest of our cottagers associations,

- * Lobbying local, provincial and federal governments to achieve our common goals, and

- * Maintaining close liaison with FOCA.

Brown also devised a list of more specific objectives for the new council to pursue. They included;

- * Encouraging the Trent-Severn Waterway to be much more responsive to the needs of cottagers and communities alike throughout the reservoir system,

- * Establishing mechanisms to insure a more equitable distribution on the available water between the watershed and the waterway itself,

- * Encouraging a review of possible expansion of the reservoir capacity in the system,

- * Seeking immediate representation on the HHWLMAC and,

- * Begin immediately to seek support for our specific and general objectives from township and county governments bordering the TSW.

Brown said that if the water is to be equitably distributed the TSW "have to understand they might have to do with less."

He said they're not fighting the fact that their lakes are reservoir lakes but that they want to see some equity in the system.

"In a dry summer I'd like to see that the lower Trent takes its kicks along with us," he said.

And although a review of increased reservoir capacity is an objective of the council, Brown admitted it was more of a political tactic than a realistic expectation.

He said the environmental assessment which would be required for the creation of additional reservoir lakes, and the costs involved, almost totally rule out that possibility.

One of the most immediate objectives of the council is to secure representation on the HHWLMAC. Brown said that currently membership on the water levels committee seems to be arbitrary.

He said he wants to see the executive from the fledgling council replace the cottagers already serving on the water levels committee. "They are the logical ones to present their respective regions," he said.

The council is made up of 11 members. Three members from each of the three watersheds, the Gull River system, the Burnt River system and the Southern system, plus the president and executive director of FOCA.

The executive of the council is comprised of a president, a vice-president and a secretary, one from each of the three watersheds.

Those in attendance at the meeting divided themselves up according to watersheds they represent to choose the members of the council. Following is a list of the membership;

Gull River System

Bill Brown - Hawk/Halls
Morris Wilson - Horseshoe
Cheryl Cathcart - Redstone

Burnt River System

Al Ferguson - Drag Lake
Ernest Thorn - Kashagawigamog
Rob Prure - Contau

Southern System

Gord Judge - Catchacoma
Marion Duncan - Eels
Ed Philips - Anstruther

Brown said next year's membership will be chosen in a more democratic manner using an election process to be established by the new council members.

Uprooting the County Town

Minden Deputy Reeve Bern Berry won't be a popular person when he returns to the next meeting of County Council. However, his popularity with Minden residents—the people he represents—should grow immensely now that he has reversed his opinion on the planned relocation of the Haliburton County offices.

Facing a shortage of office space at the present building in Minden, the county's reeves (management committee) recently decided in a closed session that a new county office is in order. They recommended the purchase of a 4.6-acre property on Highway 121, a recommendation that was later supported by all county councillors.

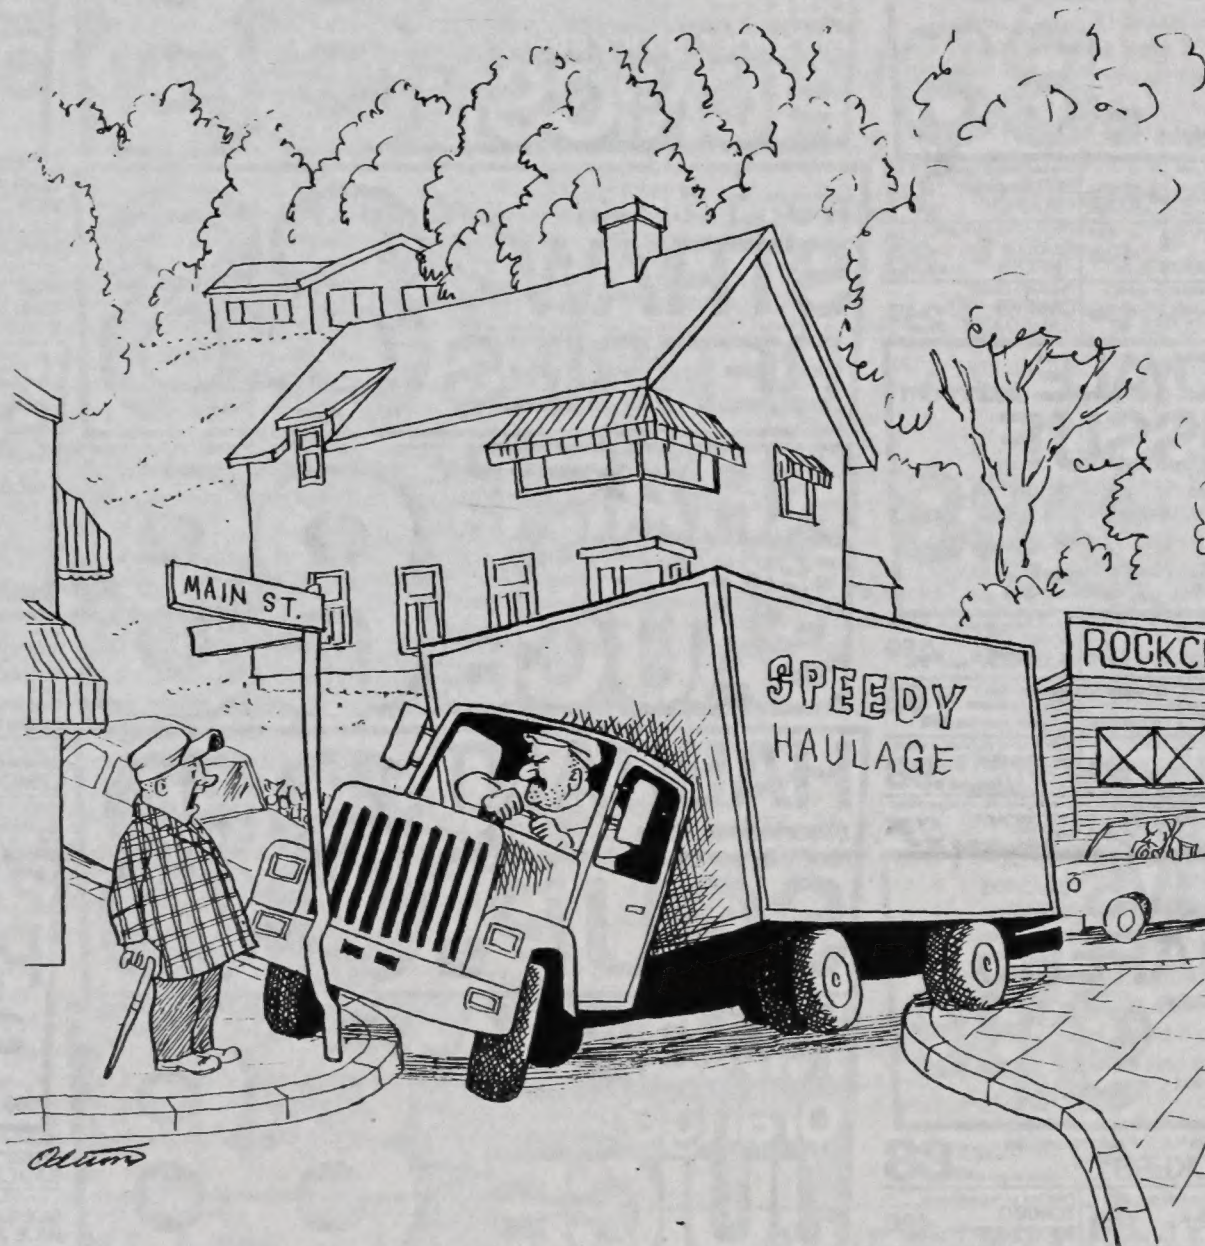

On the surface it might seem logical that the county offices should be centrally located at the Allsaw Flats. But a closer look reveals a number of flaws in the logic, flaws that might have been unearthed if more time and thought had gone into this decision.

Firstly, the new offices are being situated in an area where municipal water and sewer services are not available—hardly a progressive move. And secondly, the new "central" location is isolated from all established commerce. The banks, the lawyers, and the stores will no longer be within walking distance of the office.

It should also be noted that the county office is not the only facility affected by this move. The registry office, the ambulance, and the court will very likely go with it. And once they have all moved, we can bet the OPP won't be far behind. All of this development and more will be taking place on property not far from Lake Kashagawigamog, property that is not served by town sewer and water.

This whole move has come about because of a shortage of space at the present county offices on Newcastle Street. However, this shortfall could be overcome by expanding the building to the adjacent municipally-owned property. An expansion would be less expensive and cause far less upheaval of the existing infrastructures.

After having some time to consider the pros and cons, Berry has realized it is not a wise move. Let's hope he can convince Reeve Ray Moore and the rest of county council to have another look at what they are proposing.

"YOU JUST BACK OUT TO HIGHWAY 35, HEAD NORTH TO SCOTCH LINE, GO PAST THE DUMP TO BOBCAYGEON ROAD, AND TRY IF YOU CAN GET THROUGH FROM THAT SIDE."

Crooks guilty of first degree stupidity

If poverty is the mother of crime, stupidity is its father.

A French satirist by the name of Jean de La Bruyere penned those words more than 300 years ago, but they might have been lifted from yesterday's blotter at any police precinct in this country. A lot of things have changed in the past three centuries but not, I submit, the mount of grey matter between the ears of your average sneakthief, snatchpurse or cutthroat. They're still stupid after all these years.

There are degrees of dumb, however. The heistmeister who hit the Bank of Commerce in Cambridge, Ontario recently broke a cardinal bank robbing commandment—he left his face hanging out for bystanders to see and remember—but at least he did it in style. The guy showed up at the teller's wicket decked out in a three-piece suit and sunglasses with an expensive-looking attache case dangling from his well-manicured mitt. He passed the teller an I-have-a-bomb-in-my-briefcase note, scooped several thousand dollars into his briefcase and left.

In a chauffeur-driven, white limousine.

It was a rental from a nearby-town. The crook had told the drive he wanted to "look at some real estate" in the area.

"He put up a big cash deposit for the rental" said the limo driver.

Not as big a his cash withdrawal I bet.

In the never-ending turf war between cops and robbers it's not always the bad guys who show idiocy above and beyond the call. Consider the red-faced officers of Halton County in southern Ontario who recently lost a dangerous prisoner. They were driving said prisoner between jails in a prison van. When they got to their destination, they went around to the back of the truck and found the door bent open and the prisoner long gone. "Didn't you hear anything?" the desk sergeant wanted to know. Well, actually, no. The two guards had this killer rock and roll tape on the van's four-speaker stereo y'see, and...

The Halton Board of Police has since voted to ban pleasure radios in prisoner escort vans.

Once in a very long while you encounter a crook who transcends the usual boundaries of mere stupidity and vaults into a whole new category of Clod-dom so breathtaking it doesn't even have a name yet.

Let's call it Hyperstunned.

Such a candidate is the chap currently staying at a Crowbar Hotel in North Carolina. It all started one sunny Saturday morning—the kind of morning where you get up and say 'boy, what a great day to cut the lawn!'. No such luck for our anti-hero. First, he lost control of his vehicle and ploughed into a truck. Two other cars ran into each other trying to avoid the crash. Police arrived, handcuffed our man and popped him into the front seat of their police cruiser while they took statements from the other drivers. Next thing they saw was their patrol car disappearing down the highway. After abandoning the car our man (handcuffed, mind) led police on a half hour footrace before they finally brought him down, hauled him off to the slammer and threw the book at him. His charges were various: driving while impaired, driving while his licence was revoked, improper registration, larceny, hit and run causing personal injury, careless driving and reckless driving.

Not a laughing matter, to be sure...until you find out that the vehicle our man was piloting was a lawnmower.

Pretty dumb, but not all-time dumb. That honor goes to Willie J. Collins who stormed into an Atlanta police station last month and indignantly showed the desk sergeant the very bad quality cocaine some...thief!—had sold him.

Mister Collins is in jail, but not forgotten. He serves to remind us just why they call that stuff 'dope'.

Jaws of Life fund starts

Kicking it all off, Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis presents a cheque for $100 to Fire Chief Bob Nangle. The donation got the ball rolling for a fund-raising drive to purchase Jaws of Life extrication equipment for the Stanhope department. The equipment, though stationed in Stanhope, will be for use along the highway 35, 118 and 121 corridors. Witnessing the start of the drive is Stanhope Firefighters Association president Bob Pollard. The basic jaws equipment will cost $12,000 and the firefighters are hoping to be able to get a number of optional devices as well for an additional $6000.

Minden fights to save county town

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden councillors have sent a clear message to County Council that they oppose the planned move of the county's offices out of the village of Minden.

"I have a very large problem with the county building moving from the village," said councillor Bob Sisson at last Thursday's council meeting. "I feel we should still control the (county) seat in our village."

Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry voted in favour of the move at the March meeting of county council but said he's had a change of heart since then.

Berry said he voted for the move "with the feeling that it was staying in the township." However since that vote, Berry said he's been approached by several "knowledgeable people" who oppose the move and made reference to the original Charter in 1874 which established Minden village as the seat of government for the Provisional County of Haliburton.

Berry also referred to Minden's Official Plan which states that council should try and maintain the village as the centre of activity in the township.

"I feel I've been neglectful in raising my hand at county council and voting to move out of Minden," said Berry.

In March, county council approved the purchase of a 4.6 acre site on Highway 121 in the area known as the Allsaw Flats at a price of $44,000.

The decision to relocate the offices, instead of renovating the currently occupied building on Newcastle Street was based on the condition of the old building and a lack of adequate parking.

When the new county building will be built is still uncertain.

Sisson said the county should have approached Minden council before making the decision to move the offices out of the village.

"I don't see why we have to sell the barn when the horse is still alive," said councillor Lewis Stevens.

Discussion about the move was prompted by a request from county council to waive one of the conditions for severing the property that was left over from the previous owner.

The property has been severed into three lots, all of which were purchased by the county. As a condition of the sever-

Berry admits mistake in county vote

ances, the township insisted that access be deeded from Robertson Road to two of the properties.

Because the county owns all three lots it no longer needs to provide access to the two lots which don't front Robertson Road, and asked to have the condition waived.

In a token gesture, which has no effect on the county's ability to use the property, Berry suggested that council not waive the condition.

"I realize my time at county council is going to be very difficult because of this," said Berry. He also noted that the county's Land Division Committee will probably overrule the township and waive the access. "I feel strongly enough in my principles," said Berry.

Reeve Ray Moore also supported the move at county council and he maintained that position last Thursday. He said that he agreed with some of Berry's comments but supported the move out of Minden as a way of centralizing county services between the two main centres, Minden village and Haliburton village.

Moore also said that the county's long-term plans may see more than just the county offices move out of the village. He said the Registry Office, the ambulance base and the court facilities might all make the move to the Allsaw Flats.

The county needs more room for staff increases and parking said Moore, and the new location is still in Anson, Hindon and Minden. "That's the important issue," he said.

Moore said it was a question of "having a forward look ahead to restructuring or be parochial and say 'I want everything in my community'."

In a recorded vote, at the request of Berry, Moore was the only one who voted in favour of waiving the severance condition on the property.

Downtown facelift is underway with minor changes

With the improvements to Minden's Main Street well underway last week, councillors came to inspect the work Monday and decided some minor changes to the plans are necessary.

The $170,000 project involved narrowing the street in some sections, installing planter boxes, cross walks and benches. The project is being funded jointly by the municipality and the Ministry of Municipal Affairs.

The widening the sidewalks in front of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and at the intersection of Main and North Water Streets will result in narrower traffic lanes. On Monday councillors watched as a large truck struggled to make its way around these two corners.

On Thursday, MPP John

Eakins presented a cheque representing half the ministry's share of the costs to council. Prior to the cheque presentation Minden Reeve Ray Moore said some minor changes to the plans have been made. However, he said the width of the road in front of the bank will still be only about 24 feet. Moore said the plans were drawn up by experts, who advised that the narrower road at this corner will discourage double parking along Main Street.

With support from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs' PRIDE program, Minden's Main Street is undergoing some significant changes. This $170,000 project will alter the sidewalks, and create new crosswalks, planter boxes and park benches. Victoria Haliburton MPP John Eakins presented Minden Council with a cheque for the ministry's share of the costs last Thursday (left photo). From the left are Councillor Mike Maher, Councillor Bob Sisson, Reeve Ray Moore, Eakins, Deputy Reeve Bern Berry and Councillor Lewis Stevens.

(Above) Reeve Moore was amused at the misspelling of his title on the sign that announces this project. The 'Reave' blushed when he was told that one definition of this word is to rob or plunder.

Schools to be tested for asbestos, Few local problems are anticipated

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

All schools in the area are going to be inspected for asbestos as part of a Ministry of Labour program.

At last week's board of education meeting, Business Administrator Jim Bradley said that the ministry is requiring all school boards in the province to undertake an asbestos management plan.

The plan will be implemented in stages and involved inspecting schools to see if they contain any asbestos and ensuring that any asbestos found does not pose a health risk.

The province-wide move was prompted by the discovery in several Toronto schools of asbestos insulation in the ceilings.

Bradley said he contacted a number of consultants with expertise in asbestos management and was given estimates ranging in price from $5,400 to $17,000 for the inspection process alone.

After checking with several other school boards, Bradley said the consultant who provided the lowest estimate, Trevor Harris, received high praise. If the board holds off on the inspections until summer, Harris' price for the inspection will drop to $3,400.

Asbestos was once used as an insulating material in walls and around heating pipes until it was discovered that it posed a health risk to people who come into contact with it.

On Wednesday, Bradley told The Times that the school is fortunate because some local schools were inspected for asbestos in the early 1980's when the health risks were discovered.

At the Victoria Street School is so old it's almost "pre-asbestos" said Bradley although some was discovered around heating pipes and was cleaned up.

The High School was the subject of a major asbestos inspection back in the early '80's, but Bradley said they only place it was found was in the plaster of paris used in art classes.

Bradley outlined three possible outcomes of the inspections. The first, and most preferable, is that no asbestos is found. The second is that asbestos is found and is removed, and the third is that asbestos is sealed to prevent anyone from coming in contact with it.

If asbestos is found, the Ministry of Labour prefers that it be sealed, or encapsulated, because trying to remove it increases the chances of exposure.

Bradley said the only places that asbestos is likely to be found in local schools is wrapped around heating pipes, in which case it will be a question of ensuring the pipes are well sealed.

In Toronto the problems arose from asbestos insulation which was sprayed above the suspended ceilings. In some cases the asbestos had flaked off was lying on top of the ceiling tiles where it might have been disturbed and entered the classrooms.

As part of the inspection, schools will be tested for asbestos and diagrams will be provided showing where any asbestos is located. After the asbestos has been sealed training program will be given on how to handle the substance, and annual inspections will occur to ensure it's safely contained.

While our road infrastructure is at a crisis, with congestion blocking our cities, our National Highway, the Trans Canada Highway, crying out for attention, the people of Ontario, not only the road users involved in the Better Roads Coalition, should be asking our politicians why?

Minden group sponsors El Salvador refugee

Searching for a safe haven

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

His name is Manuel and all he wants is a safe place to live.

Manuel Alberto Ramirez-Salazar is a 27-year-old citizen of El Salvador who is fighting to be allowed to stay in Canada with support from a group of local residents.

He fled El Salvador in December 1988 after members of his family received death threats from the Marxist guerrillas who have been fighting the army for the past decade.

Having arrived in Canada via England, Ramirez applied for refugee status, and was granted a hearing before the refugee review board in August 1989.

In January, the board handed down its decision to deny Ramirez-Salazar refugee status in Canada.

Unless he can convince Canada Immigration to change its mind, he will have to leave the country when his visa expires on August 15.

"I was quite depressed," said Ramirez-Salazar in an interview with The Times last week. "I know that my case is true. I haven't lied and I haven't broken any laws."

El Salvador is a Central American country which has been torn apart by civil war for the last 10 years. Struggling for power in the country are the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLT) Marxist guerrillas and the right-wing government of President Alfredo Cristiani.

Since 1980, well over 70,000 people have been killed in the fighting, most of those civilians.

It was in this constant state of war that Ramirez-Salazar grew up.

He was in high school at the time the fighting broke out and says half of his class joined the revolution movement to fight the forces. Two of Ramirez-Salazar's classmates were gunned down just two blocks from the school.

Ramirez-Salazar lived near the university in San Salvador, the country's capital city. When the army invaded the university campus Ramirez-Salazar says, "they were fighting for two days, we couldn't go outside."

"It was common to people lying in the streets where they had been shot," he says. "You get used to it."

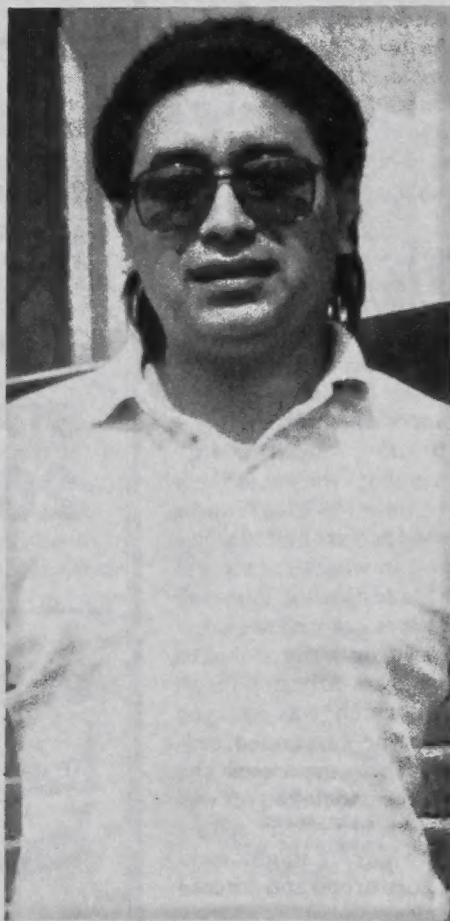

Living with death is something every citizen of El Salvador has to get used to says Ramirez-Salazar. "We were all in danger. At any time a bomb could explode when you're walking down the street."

But besides the fear of being a victim of the war's random violence, Ramirez-Salazar also had a much more personal reason to fear for his life.

His uncle, Miguel Valencia was elected mayor of the city of Santa Ana in 1988 representing a right-wing political party called Arena.

Both of Ramirez-Salazar's parents died while he was still quite young and he was raised by his aunt, Eva and later by his cousin Berta, Valencia's daughter.

Soon after winning the mayoral election Valencia became the target of death threats from the rebel forces. In June 1988 a bomb exploded in Valencia's home, damaging the house and neighbouring residents but causing no injuries.

Manuel Ramirez-Salazar, hopes, with the help of five Minden area sponsors, to be able to remain in Canada.

In another incident, a car loaded with explosives was found parked outside Santa Ana's city hall and Valencia had to be evacuated from the building.

According to Ramirez-Salazar, the threats and bombings were part of an attempt by the guerrillas to force his uncle to resign from his position as mayor.

In September 1988, Ramirez-Salazar received a telephone call from Berta, with whom he had lived from 1979 to 1984, warning him to stay away from her house.

Berta had begun to receive threats from the guerrillas who said that since they had failed in their attempts to kill Valencia, they would go after his immediate family.

A couple of weeks later Valencia wrote to his family advising them to leave the country because the situation had become too dangerous for them to safely remain in El Salvador.

Because Ramirez-Salazar had lived with Berta and her family and still kept in contact with his uncle, the Mayor, his family believed he too would be in danger if he stayed in the country.

Berta, along with her husband and children, made arrangements to leave El Salvador and go to the United States. She asked Ramirez-Salazar to join them.

Berta's family had visitor's visas allowing them to enter the United States, but Ramirez-Salazar was denied a similar visa because he was a single adult-male with limited means to support himself financially.

Berta left with her children for the United States in late November. Her husband Carlos moved in with Ramirez-Salazar with plans to follow his family at the end of the year.

With Berta's departure, Ramirez-Salazar was the closest family member still living in San Salvador and Carlos advised him to also leave the country because of the danger he would be in.

Confused and afraid, Ramirez-Salazar turned to Minden resident Wayne Hughes for assistance.

The two men had met when Hughes was in El Salvador visiting a family he sponsored through the Foster Parent Plan. Ramirez-Salazar, an employee of Foster Parent Plan International, served as Hughes' translator during the visit.

In November Ramirez-Salazar contacted Hughes and asked for assistance in leaving El Salvador. Hughes called Canadian Immigration Department officials and asked about sponsoring Ramirez-Salazar's entry into Canada as a refugee.

Hughes was told that a group of five private Canadian citizens could sponsor Ramirez-Salazar as a refugee, and that to be eligible Ramirez-Salazar would first have to leave El Salvador.

Not requiring a visa to enter Great Britain, Ramirez-Salazar left El Salvador and flew to London, arriving on Dec. 12, 1988.

Despite the death threats against his family and the constant civil war, Ramirez-Salazar says leaving El Salvador was a difficult move.

"It was a tough choice to make," he says. "I had a very good job and friends. That was the only place I ever lived."

"You know you have that. You don't know what to expect when you leave," he says.

But given the departure of his family and the increasing siege of violence in El Salvador, Ramirez-Salazar said he didn't really have any other choice but to leave.

"It's not something I wanted to do," he says. "It was something I was forced to do."

At first an Immigration officer at the Canadian High Commission in London denied Ramirez-Salazar a visa to enter Canada because he had left a "conflictive country." But after communication between Immigration offices in London and Canada the visa was finally granted.

On December 23, Ramirez-Salazar landed at Pearson International Airport in Toronto with a visa permitting him to stay in the country for a period of three months.

In Minden, Hughes put together a private sponsorship group consisting of himself, his mother Marion, Keith and Marilyn Junkin and Fraser Rogers to sponsor Ramirez-Salazar's immigration claim.

In order to make a formal application for permanent resident status in Canada, Ramirez-Salazar had to travel to the Canadian consulate in New York city on March 11.

But because of a back-log of applications to the New York office, consulate officials recommended that Ramirez-Salazar should apply as a "Convention Refugee" for permanent residence in Canada.

On June 30, 1989 Ramirez-Salazar attended a Credible Basis Hearing in Mississauga in order for immigration officials to assess his claim for refugee status.

The result of the hearing is that Ramirez-Salazar's claim was deemed to be credible and a full hearing before the refugee review board was scheduled for August 3.

In July Ramirez-Salazar's visa was extended until January 18, 1990 and he was given permission to attend Durham College to take an advanced English as a second language course.

On August 3, Ramirez-Salazar attended his refugee review board hearing accompanied by Hughes and Gregory James, an immigration lawyer. Following the hearing the two members of the board decided to reserve their decision until a later date.

At the time, James told Ramirez-Salazar that he thought the hearing went well and that he ought to be given refugee status.

In October, Ramirez-Salazar applied for admission to Toronto University to begin a program in Spanish studies and was granted admission to the university on January 9, 1990. On January 16, he had his visa extended until August 15.

But on January 31, the refugee review board advised Ramirez-Salazar that his application for refugee status had been denied.

Although the board members said they found no inconsistencies or discrepancies in his story, they decided that "the relationship between the claimant and the mayor of Santa Ana is not close enough to create an objective basis for the claimant to have a well-founded fear of persecution."

In other words, the board didn't feel that Ramirez-Salazar has any reason to be afraid of living in El Salvador.

Fear for his safety forced Ramirez to flee conflict-torn homeland of El Salvador.

But Ramirez-Salazar says it was fear for his safety that forced him and his family to seek refuge outside of El Salvador.

"That's why we left. We thought we could be in danger," says Ramirez Salazar. "I had a good job, my family had good jobs, we did not leave because of economic problems."

He says the family gave up their financial security in El Salvador and left to face uncertain conditions abroad. "It's a chance we took," he says.

After finally making it to Canada, Ramirez-Salazar says he now knows what it's like to live without fear. "It was a relief to get here," he says. "I started to sleep better. It was a sense that I was free of that violence. That made me feel better."

But Ramirez-Salazar still hopes a way will be found to let him stay in Canada, a country he now wants to make his permanent home. After completing his education he would like to pursue a career as either a teacher or a translator.

Biological 'hospitals' are vanishing

Reflections

by Dr. David Suzuki

Much of the world's attention is rightly focused on tropical rainforests, which occupy only seven per cent of the land yet support well over half of all life forms on earth.

These biological "hotspots" are disappearing at a horrifying rate and we should all put pressure on to stop it.

But 71 per cent of the planet is covered with salt water, a mysterious, alien world for airbreathers like us.

The oceans are not uniform aqueous environments, they contain radically different ecosystems that support very different spectra of life. Our rich banks off the Atlantic provinces benefit from the mixing of ocean currents and fertile upwellings from the seafloor. Deep sea vents support a host of unique organisms while, closer to shore, estuaries and mangrove swamps teem with life.

But the marine equivalents of tropical rainforests are coral reefs. They occupy only one per cent of the ocean yet support at least 25 per cent of all marine fish species. Coral reefs are more than 20 times more productive than the open ocean, 10 times more than coastal waters and three times greater than upwellings. And like forests, each set of reefs harbors its own unique habitats.

The richest and most diverse coral reefs in the world lie in the "Fertile Triangle" that includes the Philippines. They support over 2,200 species of marine fish (10 per cent of the world) and 3,200 species of molluscs. A square kilometre of Philippine reefs yields up to 37 tonnes of fish annually. Fish are half of the protein for the Philippines' 62 million people.

A report in Galaxea (1988) by Don McAllister of the Canadian Museum of Nature in Ottawa reveals that the Philippines' coral reefs are gravely damaged. Under the regime of Ferdinand Marcos, forests containing mahogany were reduced to 20 per cent of the land from 80 per cent, causing destructive sedimentation in the ocean. The Green Revolution of the '70s required large amounts of pesticides and fertilizers, which then washed into the sea and damaged the coral.

Among the more destructive practices are the commercial harvest of fish for food and the marine aquarium industry. Fish are caught under conditions that inflict high mortality on them and terrible destruction on the reefs. The crudest kind of capture involves banging the reefs with weights to frighten fish into huge nets. Dynamite is a simpler but more destructive agent. It takes an estimated 37 years for a dynamited reef to regain half its original luxuriance.

Perhaps the most shocking method involves spraying cyanide on coral heads and capturing those stunned fish that haven't received a lethal dose. Repeated exposure to cyanide kills corals and McAllister estimates that that 150,000 kilograms are used annually.

The result of all this is that today, 70 per cent of the coral reefs around the Philippines are assessed as poor or fair.

From 1966 to 1986, productivity of the reefs fell by at least a third while the number of people on the islands almost doubled. In 1966, one kilometre of healthy reef support 900 people, but 20 years later, it had to support 2,631. The Philippines' population is expected to double yet again in another 40 years while the destructive practices of logging, agriculture and aquarium fish harvesting will probably accelerate.

We in North America can influence the fates of those reefs. We can urge our government to increase support for birth control education in the Philippines. We can encourage President Corazon Aquino to make protection of the reefs a high priority in her budget. We can oppose the sale of aquarium fish

"I still have hope," he says. "I hope they see that I am basically an honest guy. In my country, in spite of the situation, I respected the law and was never in trouble. I know I can be useful to society."

Ramirez-Salazar's future now depends on convincing an Immigration officer to grant him landed immigrant status, on the basis of his ability to adapt to Canadian society in the year-and-a-half he's lived here. If that fails, he will have to apply to Immigration Minister Barbara McDougall to overturn the decision of the refugee review board on compassionate grounds.

Whatever happens Ramirez-Salazar does not want to have to return to El Salvador. "The situation there is about the same, nothing has changed," he says. "The danger is still there."

Although he was never politically active in El Salvador, Ramirez-Salazar says his association, through his family, with the Arena Party is enough to make him a target for the rebels. "That's the problem. Neither the army nor the guerrillas investigate. They just act. I don't believe that fighting and violence is the solution for the country. I don't want to be in the army or the guerrillas."

And after more than a year in Canada, he doesn't want to leave the country he now calls home and friends like the Hughes'. "It's like when I left El Salvador," he says. "It's difficult to say good-bye."

Dorset kids celebrate Earth Day with pizza

Kids rarely need an excuse to eat pizza, but when those Italian pies come in the shape of carrots, whales, frogs and tropical birds, there must be some method to the madness.

On April 20 the students at Dorset Elementary School cooked up some colourful and creative pizzas in celebration of Earth Day.

"The kids did a lot of co-operative preplanning and this is what they came up with," principal Michele Coneybeare said.

But why on earth did they fashion their pizzas after carrots, frogs, whales and tropical birds? We'll let the kids explain:

"We decided to make our pizza in the shape of a tropical bird because we want to save the Amazonian Rainforests," say Ian Girard, Kevin Nixon Sonda Aubin and Nathan Jones. "We want to save the animals, plants and natives. We think this is important because we need the plants for medicine and oxygen."

Anna Ross, Zachary Lock, Alicia Beuden, Jessica, Reilly and Scott Crewson made their pizza in the shape of a whale "because we want to save the whales from oil spills and hunters. We think this is important because by the year 2000 the whales might be extinct."

The carrot-shaped pizza was made by kindergarten students Stephanie Lazerte, Shallon Dukoff, Donald McEachern and Peggy Taylor. "We decided to make a carrot pizza because lots of people like to eat carrots and we need to take care of our farms," they explain.

Kyle Jones, Becky Scott, Micol Cottrell and Jaime Armstrong made their pizza in the shape of a big green frog. They want to protect frogs from oil and gas for boats on the lakes, from acid rain and from people using them as fishing bait.

Like many of the events carried out at the school, this one came off with a lot of support from parents and volunteers.

Auxiliary winds up a busy first year

For Your Service

By President Shirley Kirk

As of February 15, our Auxiliary has been formed one year, and what a busy and entertaining year our members have had. In celebration, we enjoyed a delicious steak supper, cooked and served by our Branch men.

Since then, we have seen our membership grow to 31, welcome to all our new Comrades.

During the year, we held bake sales, joint yard sale with our branch, Christmas tea and Bazaar. Thank you to everyone who helped us to a great start, with their generous donations, enabling us to purchase the rest of our flags. We also hosted our first Zone Sports Fun Night and Zone Sports Meeting. Both were well attended by Auxiliary members of Zone F-4.

Nominations and Elections, for the coming year, were held at our General Meeting of April 11. Our Officers and Executive for 1990/91 are: President: Comrade Shirley Kirk, 1st Vice President: Comrade Georgina Deeks, 2nd Vice President: Comrade Ethel Baker, Secretary: Comrade Wendy Jacobs, Treasurer: Comrade Muriel Harrington, Sgt.-At-Arms: Comrade Gloria Lemieux, Sports Officer: Comrade Shiela Burke, Executive: Comrades Leanne Bathe, Terry Campbell, Molly McKenzie and Dorothy Graham.

As President of the Ladies Auxiliary, I sincerely thank all our members and the Branch for their co-operation and assistance. A special thank you to those who worked so hard in the kitchen every day serving lunches; and also to Branch President Sally and her Executive for their help during our struggling first year.

Without all this team work, we would not have been able to contribute almost $10,000.00 to our Branch.

Former Fire Chief dies

Former Minden Fire Chief William Jackson has died. Known to just about everyone as 'Deac' Jackson, passed away Wednesday at Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay after a brief illness.

Deac served his community as a member of the village's volunteer fire brigade from its informal beginnings after World War Two, through recognition as a community service in the early 1950's to his retirement from the brigade, after 40 years of service, in 1986.

A plumber by trade, Deac was one of a number of community merchants who saw a need, in 1946, for an organized volunteer fire brigade. Through his efforts and others in the village a volunteer group was formed to help protect the lives and property of area citizens. He also recognized the need for a formalized structure for inter-community assistance and was instrumental in the formation of the Haliburton County Mutual Aid organization, serving as its charter president.

Deac was appointed Fire Chief in 1976 and held the post for ten years until his retirement in 1986. In 1980 the Ontario Fire Marshall's Office presented the former chief with a plaque recognizing his more than thirty years of service to fire protection.

Deac Jackson was predeceased by his wife Marjorie. He is survived by son Timothy and wife Toni of North Bay, daughter Heather and husband Lloyd Brown of Minden, stepfather Earl Hewitt of Minden, brother J.O. Jackson, sister Peggy Davis and long time companion Arnie.

Funeral Service was held Saturday at St. Paul's Anglican Church. Memorial donations to the charity of your choice would be appreciated by the family.

Minden firemen inspect the overturned wreckage of a truck involved in a single vehicle accident south of the village on April 23. According to the police, the driver, Robert Chamberlain, 33, lost control of the truck while travelling south on Highway 35. As the vehicle entered the curve by the former Braeside Lodge, the load of gravel shifted, causing the truck to flip onto its side and slide into the ditch. The careening vehicle narrowly missed an oncoming car before coming to rest in the ditch. The driver, who has been charged with failing to wear a seat belt, suffered what was described as minor injuries. He was treated at Minden Hospital.

Harold Morgan: an active community participant

Harold R. Morgan, former elementary school principal.

An educator in Haliburton County and a former principal of the Archie Stouffer Elementary School, Harold R. Morgan died suddenly at Minden on January 10. In his 44 years as a public-spirited resident here, Harold Morgan contributed immeasurably to the cultural growth of this community. In the past he served as secretary of the Minden Rotary Club and the Minden Monarchs hockey team and, more recently, the Senior Curlers, the Minden Library and Cultural Centre, the Haliburton District S.T.O. and the Board of Stewards of the Minden United Church. Harold's unassuming manner, quick insight and easy humour made him a fine teacher and a valued committee worker. He will be remembered with affectionate nostalgia by hundreds of former students, colleagues and friends.

"A very special man", "gentle", "caring", "humble", "faithful", "a leprechaun smile", "a quiet example" - these were words used by friends and loved ones to describe the influence of Harold Morgan on their lives.

Born in western Canada, Harold received his education in Vancouver and Toronto. He was a graduate of Toronto Teacher's College and of the University of Toronto, where he majored in maths and sciences. Former grade 8 pupils will recall how enthusiastically he led them through the "new" math, and on field trips to explore the caves and rock formations. Having worked in Kapuskasing before coming here, he was familiar with the north country and was an ardent fisherman. As a naturalist, he loved to discover and paint the beauty of the Highlands. He married Edna Hadley of Gooderham and they were blessed with three children, Beth, John and Harold.

Beth Morgan was a special child, and as a result of her special needs, we now have Special Education classes in all schools of our county, the first being in Minden, to which a classroom library was donated in memory of Beth.

John and Harold Jr., were honour students and valedictorians at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School. John is now living in Germany, working as a research physicist. Harold Jr., is a United Church minister at Rawdon, Quebec. Both are married and there are nine grand-children.

During his teaching career of 28 years in Minden, Harold saw the school grow from three elementary classrooms into the present Archie Stouffer Elementary School. Since 1974 he enjoyed an active retirement pursuing his many interests and hobbies and, incidentally, becoming a good cook, specializing in mushrooms, morels, fiddleheads and the numerous other edible wild plants about which he had wide knowledge. Harold had well learned the secret of a contented life, enriched by the simple pleasures of nature and the love of family and friends.

Thomas a Kempis wrote: "First keep thyself in peace, and then shalt thou be able to bring others to peace. The peaceable man does more good than one that is very learned."

Our lives are rich from the peace and warmth we received from having Harold for a friend.

Highway 35 and South Water Street

Highway 121, just east of Minden, came close to being swept away early Monday morning, when a beaver dam burst. The torrent of water filled the ditch on the opposite side of the roadway, then poured across the pavement eroding the shoulder. Fortunately, the flooding stopped before serious damage could be done to the paved portion of the highway. Ministry of Transportation employees were on the scene Monday replacing the gravel which had been swept away.

The federal government insists the Accord must be endorsed as it is now written

In Marjorie Bowker's concluding analysis of the Meech Lake Accord she examines the implications for Canada if the accord is endorsed by June 23 and what will happen if all the provinces do not agree to its terms. It should be noted that Bowker's assessment was written two months ago, and therefore some of her comments (regarding the proposal put forward from New Brunswick Premier Fran McKenna) do not reflect what has transpired since then.

The Meech Lake Accord is a document which will have long-term consequences for this country. All Canadians should be aware of what it says and what it could mean for our nation. Consider the provisions, carefully, analyze what those for and against the Accord are saying. After June 23, it could be too late.

As always, your comments, in letters to the editor, are welcome.

STATUS OF THE MEECH LAKE ACCORD AS OF FEBRUARY

The Meech Lake Accord, which was signed by the Prime Minister and all ten provinces in June 1987, had to be ratified by Parliament and by all the provincial legislatures in order to become law.

The necessary resolution was passed without difficulty by Parliament, and by eight of the ten provincial legislatures. However, New Brunswick and Manitoba have refused to ratify the Accord.

More recently, Premier Clyde Wells of Newfoundland (himself an able constitutional lawyer) has threatened to withdraw the ratification given by the former Conservative government of Brian Peckford. For the time, in January 1990, B.C. Premier Vander Zalm threatened to do the same, saying the Accord was unacceptable to the people of his province. However, he has since indicated that he will not withdraw his province's ratification despite what he describes as his "reticence" about it.

The status of the Meech Lake Accord as at February 15, 1990 is this: the premiers of Manitoba and New Brunswick are maintaining their positions that they will not ratify the Accord without major amendments. The premier of Newfoundland is taking the same position, and may even revoke his province's earlier ratification.

The final date for ratification by all provinces has been set at June 23, 1990 (being three years following ratification by the Province of Quebec.) Failing ratification by that time, the Accord will die.

Since this analysis was written, the Newfoundland legislature has rescinded its endorsement of the Accord.

GROUPS SUPPORTING THE MEECH LAKE ACCORD

Over the next few months, Canadians will likely be besieged with a barrage of propaganda from the federal government, academics and influential business leaders urging support for the Meech Lake Accord. These groups are similar in their categories to those which supported the Free Trade Agreement. Because of abundant financial resources, they are able to exert considerable influence. One such group calls itself "Friends of Meech Lake"

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT POSITION

Even though there was no public consultation on the Meech Lake Accord before it was signed, the federal government has maintained its position from the beginning that the Accord will not be changed in any aspect. Yet the Canadian public had no part in its formulation.

Despite growing opposition, both Mr. Mulroney and Premier Bourassa have flatly rejected any amendments, while threatening dire consequences if the Accord fails. They appear to have adopted an "all or nothing" attitude. As recently as February 3, 1990, Mr. Mulroney, speaking in Montreal in a vibrant plea for the Accord, called it "a statement of love for Canada". In response, New Brunswick Premier Frank McKenna, who was in attendance, said that while the stakes are high, "Canada's future will be even more shaky if the Accord is adopted without change".

ALTERNATIVES TO THE MEECH LAKE ACCORD

No viable suggestions have come forward for breaking the impasse over the Meech Lake Accord.

Proposals have come from two premiers, both of whom signed the Accord. In January 1990, Premier Vander Zalm of British Columbia, proposed that the Accord be implemented in two stages: first, those parts satisfying the present amending formula could be proclaimed by the deadline date of June 23, 1990; second, other parts of the Accord which require unanimous consent could be delayed, with a time limit set for further negotiations. Neither the Prime Minister nor his colleague, Senator Lowell Murray (Minister for Federal-Provincial Relations) showed much interest in this proposal. One of Premier Vander Zalm's suggestions was that all ten provinces and the two Territories be declared distinct societies.

On February 5, 1990, Ontario Premier David Peterson, speaking in Quebec City alluded to his own proposal which would ratify the Accord, then proceed to further negotiations. With the Meech Lake Accord in place, however, the unanimity rule on further changes would apply.

Another suggestion which has come forward is for a so-called "Parallel Accord", first proposed by New Brunswick Premier McKenna, but neither he nor any other premier has shown interest in promoting the concept. Whatever its merits, the Prime Minister and Quebec Premier Bourassa have made it clear that the Meech Lake Accord must first be passed in its present form. Once that were done, any major changes would require unanimous consent. There is little hope that all provinces would agree on controversial issues which they could not resolve before. The euphoria of June 1987 when all premiers so readily achieved unanimity was a short-lived miracle.

A Parallel Accord could not hope to address the deficiencies in the Meech Lake Accord without re-writing it: such concerns, for example, as those affecting minorities, aboriginals, women, new provinces and the veto. These items are all too important to be relegated to a secondary or "parallel accord", and would only add to the confusion.

A third suggestion is to let the Meech Lake Accord die, and immediately begin new constitutional talks. After all, this was the fate of the Victoria Constitutional Charter of 1971 which was passed, then renounced by Quebec, leading to another decade of negotiations before a new constitution was ratified in 1982 (though once again not ratified by Quebec).

Changes in a nation's constitution are of necessity slow. The attempt at Meech Lake to accelerate the process in secret without public participation was bound to produce the situation that now confronts Canadians.

CONSEQUENCES OF REJECTING THE ACCORD

It is unfortunate that the federal government (and some media) have promoted the idea that rejection of the Meech Lake Accord is a rejection of Quebec.

Canadians are being told by political leaders that if the Accord is not ratified, Quebec will separate from Canada. However, the same result could occur even if the Accord were ratified. Some future Quebec government might take the position that the promotion of Quebec's "distinct identity" necessitates separation. So, whether the Accord is accepted or rejected, the result could be the same in the end. Rejecting the Accord, or accepting it with its distinct society clause could eventually produce the same unfortunate result. It is the Accord itself that has produced this dilemma.

Canadians outside Quebec do not want to say 'No' to Quebec, yet political leaders portray acceptance or rejection in that light. The distinct status of Quebec is only one of several features about the Accord that are controversial.

Quebec enjoys many advantages by being part of Canada—much more than if it were to drift under American domination. If it became a separate country, it would require its own defence forces (army, navy, airforce), its own currency, banking system and financial structure, postal system, social services, international treaties and foreign embassies—which would be very costly for a sovereign state with only 6 million people.

It is reasonable to expect that most Quebecers will choose not to take the separation route, and that a constitutional arrangement can be reached which will take into account the interest of all Canadians, inside and outside Quebec.

Canadians should not allow themselves to be intimidated by threats, but should ask the question: What will the Meech Lake Accord mean to us and to Canada?

SUMMARY AND CONCLUSIONS

The weakness of the Meech Lake Accord lies not only in what it has done but in how it has done it.

SUMMARY

The Process

The process from the start has been undemocratic. It began with eleven men meeting in secret to radically change the Canadian constitution, but with no mandate from the public to do so. Nor was there any information made available in advance as to what was being discussed. When Canadians were presented with the final document—the Meech Lake Accord—they were told it cannot be altered: no changes are possible; it must be accepted as it is. Despite nearly three years of discussion and debate, the federal government continues to hold to that position.

The content

As to the content of the Accord, it represents a radical shift of power from the federal government to the provincial governments. The original purpose of the Accord was to satisfy the demands which Quebec made as its condition for agreeing to sign the 1992 Constitution (from which it had earlier exempted itself). To gain agreement from the other nine premiers to concessions being granted to Quebec, the federal government gave similar power to all the provinces. Because these are powers which properly belong at the federal level of government, the result will be weakening of the national fabric.

The issues

The power which would pass to the Provinces under the Meech Lake Accord include;

- greater provincial control over immigration;
- provincial government nominations to the Senate;
- provincial government nominations for Judges of the Supreme Court of Canada;
- greater provincial control over federal spending on shared-cost programs;
- a veto to all provinces on major constitutional amendments in the future.

If the Accord is ratified, the chances of achieving Senate reform are almost non-existent. On such a contentious issue, uniformity among the provinces would be almost impossible to achieve, since the veto of just one province could defeat any proposal.

A serious defect in the Meech Lake Accord is its failure to give precedence to the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms. Without such a provision, clearly stated, the rights of women, natives of northern Canadians could be at risk in future.

While much publicity has centred on the special status granted to Quebec as a "distinct society", this is only one of several issues that are controversial about the Meech Lake Accord. That subject, and all the topics mentioned above, are discussed at length in earlier installments of this analysis.

The impasse

There seems to be no option out of the impasse that has been created. It is the (more on page 23)

MEECH:

Accord itself that has produced the impasse - both by the process that created it, and the intractable position maintained by the federal government since.

One suggestion has been for a parallel Accord. However, both the federal and Quebec governments have made it clear that no such proposal could be considered until after the Meech Lake Accord is ratified. This means that the unanimity rule would then be in effect, and a single veto could defeat any proposal.

A Parallel Accord could not address the deficiencies in the Meech Lake Accord without actually re-writing it. Concerns of minorities, aboriginals, women and the northern territories are too important to be relegated to a secondary or "parallel" accord.

The choices

If the Meech Lake Accord is ratified, it would mean that instead of a united Canada, we would have a fragmented country, each province being semi-autonomous, and each premier with enhanced powers. Yet these are times when Canada needs a strong central government to maintain a sense of national purpose, to alleviate economic disparities and to arbitrate regional differences. Never before has Canada been more in need of a united

A difficult choice: what are the long-term implications if the Accord is accepted as it is system of government with power to cope with the serious economic, social and environmental concerns facing us as a nation.

If the Meech Lake Accord is rejected, we will begin again—however long it may take—to achieve a better Accord which will address Quebec's special needs and at the same time assure for all Canadians a strong unified country.

Conclusion

We are unhappily confronted with a difficult choice. Above all else, we must not allow our country to be tied into a system which cannot readily be changed and which could remain with us for years to come—even forever.

This analysis has endeavoured to present the facts so that Canadians everywhere can participate in the final resolution of this dilemma. The question for all to ponder is this: What are the long-term implications of the Meech Lake Accord? If it threatens our solidarity as a nation, we must demand something better for ourselves and for future generations of Canadians.

captured by destructive methods. And we can support programs that will allow villagers to make living from the reefs while keeping them intact.

The Canadian chapter of the International Marine Alliance (2883, Otterson Dr., Ottawa, Ont. K1V 7B2) is dedicated to protecting marine environments and the people who depend on them.

IMA has shown the feasibility of a project called Netsman, which gives villagers nets for $25 to collect aquarium fish (cyanide costs $300 to $500 a year). Collectors are taught to encircle a coral head with the nets so target fish can be selectively recovered while leaving food fish and corals unharmed.

Funding from Canada's International Development Research Centre is supporting the Netsman program but the Philippine government is not enforcing the ban on logging and the use of explosives for fishing.

Like tropical rainforests, coral reefs are rich contributors to the planet's total biodiversity. The rapid reduction in these ecosystems will have unpredictable consequences for the earth's biosphere and affect all of us.

Runners line up in the blocks, anticipating the gun to start their race during Thursday's track and field meet at HHSS

On your marks

Concentration is as important as physical ability if you want to clear the bar in the pole vault event.

Four new records at track meet

The wet, spongy track was an obstacle for HHSS athletes striving to break school track records in the school's track and field meet last Thursday.

However, two runners managed to make their mark in the record books while another two records in field events were shattered.

For the second year in a row, organizers and athletes were blessed with warm, sunny weather for this annual event. This year, though, the damp ground left sections of the track very soft, protecting most records from this year's rivals.

In spite of the soft track, though, Andy Bacon managed to make his mark in the Midget Boys' 200-metre dash. He led the pack with a time of 26 seconds to break the previous record by one tenth of a second.

Mark Sorenson now shares the school record for the Senior Boys' 400-metre dash. He finished the course in 55 seconds to tie the previous record.

In the Junior Girls long jump, Arlene Simmons set a new record with a distance of 9.07 metres. The previous record was 9.01 metres.

Randy Bull shattered the school's Junior Boys' shot put record with a distance of 13.32 metres. The previous record was 12.68 metres.

Last week's competition prepares the athletes for the Kawartha West meet this Thursday at LCVI in Lindsay. The Redmen have a reputation to uphold after dominating the Kawartha West meet last year.

The following are the results from the H.H.S.S. track and field competition held April 26 at the high school. The listings name the top three finishers only, in the order of their placing, with times or distance.

Ice cream cones served with tea

Since Friday was a holiday I finished my column Tuesday night.

Wednesday morning there was a Uniform Sale in the auditorium and they had a draw, won by Peter Fearrey.

In the evening Earl Cooper and Kathy Owens gave us a lovely time of music. Kathy played the piano and Earl played the violin and mandolin. They closed by Kathy playing the accordion with Earl holding the hymn book and they both sang. Thank you Earl and Kathy. We appreciate you coming very much.

Thursday was our tea party. The Haliburton United Church Women were scheduled to come, but for some reason they were unable to come. So we wouldn't be disappointed Mark Schell and Connie Sawyer served us with ice cream cones, Linda had a loaf cake stored somewhere and with tea we had a sociable time together. Donna Luke and Janke Thomas are volunteers and they served us and took care of those residents who needed their assistance. We thank you all from the bottom of our hearts.

At 7 o'clock Tom and Marg Prentice came to call Bingo for us. We do appreciate and thank them greatly.

Good Friday afternoon Lorraine Hutchinson came to Hyland Crest for an hour of Easter music and song. Lorraine also read 3 poems to us. The residents thank her immensely for helping us spend the holiday so nicely.

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

In the evening the Four Grandfathers came to entertain us. Bill Payne - guitar, Eldon Deacon - guitar, Ken Hadley - bass violin, Charlie Hadley - mandolin and Don Burch mouth organs. They played and sang until lunch time. The residents sincerely thank them.

The beginning of last week Nancy Carefoot was taken to Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay. We wish her a speedy recovery.

Last night, Good Friday, Ada Turrall was taken to the Minden Hospital. We hope she will soon be able to come home feeling lots better.

Easter Sunday Rev. John Burgess had a chapel service in the evening and Alice Jones played the organ. The residents who attended the service thank both Rev. Burgess and Alice very much.

Those who had visitors this weekend were, Myrtle O'Halloran, several of her grandchildren, Pearl Lyle had her grandson Derrick Hewitt. Cora Upton had her daughter Dorothy Bethune and Ruby Lewis had her daughter and son-in-law Doris and Frank, she also had her daughter May and her husband Ray. Gladys Kirkpatrick had her son and wife to visit and Lola Prentice had Nina Prentice and her daughter Eleanor visit from Tally Ho. Lula Ferrill had her son Saturday morning to visit and Jean Taylor had her niece for lunch.

Those who were our during the weekend were, May Horsley, who went to visit her daughter for three or four days. Bob Mitchell's daughter took, him for a drive on Saturday. Mary Smith was out for part of Saturday. Marie McPhail went to her daughter's house. Her son-in-law came for her. Pearl Lyle's grandson came and took her out to Jean Hewitt's. Gladys White went home to her daughter's for Easter.

I was at Terry's for Easter. Terry, Norma, Norma's mother, Clara Austin, Kevin and Claudia and I went out for dinner.

Nancy Carefoot came home from Lindsay Monday, everyone hopes she will continue to improve.

Evelyn Coleman came Monday for Bible Study. We looked at the lives of two women in the old testament, Queen of Sheba and Queen Jezebel.

Tuesday afternoon was game time in the auditorium. There were four tables of euchre, one table of crokinole and two ladies played cribbage. Some ladies came from Kinmount to play. Everyone had an enjoyable time and we wish to thank all those who helped with the games.

Tuesday night York Marion came to show films. There was only one. It was a film made for T.V. of Hyland Crest. It was made about the year 1979. Ada Lewis is about the only one that was in the film here now.

There are two ladies who are taking a health care course at Sir Sandford Fleming in Haliburton. They are here for a week helping Doris with activities and Linda with Adjuvant duties. They have been a great help and very adept in their duties.

Tuesday morning service was taken by Rev. Ed Moll. We sincerely thank him and the residents appreciate his coming for the service.

Wednesday night Pastor Murray from Allsaw Pentecostal Church held a service in the main lounge. There was a good number attended and they thank him and his helpers very much.

Please remember the Lioness Club's yard sale Saturday, May 19, 1990. We are in need of good articles for sale, proceeds go to the Bus Fund. For more information please call Ellen Holden 286-2488, Mary Guillemine 286-5168, Ena Marion 286-1914, or Thelma Sliver 489-2356.

I apologize for this error in Mary Guillemine's phone number last week, correct number is above.

'We all scream for ice cream'

Residents cool off with a generous dairy scoop

There's no better way to fight off the heat than with a cool bowl of ice cream. Thanks to the generosity of Kawartha Dairies, residents and guests of Hyland Crest enjoyed their tasty treats served up by Opal Crowe, Isobel Lewis and Bev Fomenko (lower right photo). You're never too old to enjoy the cool rich flavours of ice cream with all the toppings. Lilly Curry, (below) will soon be 102 years old and she still loves it. Mary Oliver, (right) enjoyed a visit with one of her newest relatives, Sadie Kitcheman, during the Ice Cream Parlour Day. Sadie and Mary are both from Yorkshire, England. They became relatives when Sadie's son married Mary's granddaughter. In keeping with the home's initiative to encourage more participation in activities at Hyland Crest, residents of Staunworth Terrace and Staunworth Court were invited to the Ice Cream Parlour Day last Tuesday.

CAS is seeking 'special friends'

The Kawartha-Haliburton Children's Aid Society, is looking for people in the community who are interested in volunteering to become a special friend, parent assistant, or driver in the Haliburton area.

A special friend works with youngsters one-on-one providing moral support, friendship, and companionship to participate in various community and recreational activities.

Parent assistants provide moral support and assist with home and child management.

Drivers provide transportation to clients both within and outside the catchment area.

The society is looking for reliable, mature individuals who are interested in the well being of children and are comfortable with the issue of confidentiality.

Potential volunteers are welcome to contact the society at 457-1661 to get a volunteer information package and application form for these and other volunteer positions.

Free rooms for visitors donated to St. Joseph's

The close family members of very ill or emergency patients from outlying areas who need overnight accommodation but cannot afford it, will be able to stay at the STEL Red Oak Inn free thanks to a generous donation made to Saint Joseph's by the Peterborough hotel.

In a gesture of support for the hospital's anniversary year, the hotel will provide 100 nights accommodation through the rest of 1990, to be used at the discretion of hospital authorities who will monitor the program.

The Red Oak Inn, on Charlotte Street adjoining Peterborough Square shopping plaza, is part of the STEL hotel group. The idea of placing rooms at the disposal of relatives of Saint Joseph's patients was the brainchild of Vice President of the STEL chain, Robert Smith. He is also the General Manager of the Red Oak Inn.

Smith explained that, during a meeting of all STEL managers, they were discussing "how we could put something back into the communities in which the hotels are located," and the idea developed from that point.

"I suggested that we get involved with the anniversary of Saint Joseph's by providing lodging/accommodation to the families of patients who need to be close at hand during a crucial period."

He says staff of the hotel got behind the idea and encouraged him to contact Saint Joseph's to investigate how such a program could work. "I knew it was going to be a success as soon as I contacted the hospital because of the enthusiastic response I received."

He stressed that Peterborough will be the test site for the project and, if it proves as successful as anticipated, it "will become a STEL community event in the cities where our hotels are situated." STEL also operates hotels in Kingston, Thunder Bay, Sault Ste. Marie and St. John's Newfoundland.

The program will operate under the direction of a hospital committee that will make the decision as to whether a patient's family member qualifies for accommodation assistance. Smith has left such decisions entirely to the hospital. The patient's next-of-kin or close friend will be issued with a special card for presentation to the Red Oak's reception staff.

During daytime hours, such a decision will be made by the Director of Social Services, Joyce Armstrong. During nights and weekends, Nursing Administrative Coordinators will handle the process.

Frank Lussing, Executive Director of Saint Joseph's, praised the STEL executive for "a wonderful example of the private sector's continued generous support for hospitals in their communities." He stressed the fact that the gesture will be of immediate benefit to both patients and families alike.

The program has already been put into place. Careful managing of the project is crucial, in order that accommodation at the hotel will always be available for referrals from the hospital.

THE YUKKIES

Please put us in our place!

Fundamental #1:

"COULD YOU SELL YOUR OWN HOME?"

Of course you could! But, whether you should or would even want to will depend largely on your answers to these questions.

- 1 Do you have sufficient knowledge of current (and ever-changing) market conditions to price your home properly, to put it on the market at a price that will be attractive both to yourself and prospective buyers?
- 2 Do you have the skills to advertise and market your property effectively? Do you know how much advertising costs?
- 3 Do you have a network of contacts who can produce potential buyers for your home?
- 4 Are you a good negotiator? Will you be unnerved by aggressive buyers looking for bargains?
- 5 Do you have time to show your home to prospects? They'll want to look around when it's convenient to them, not necessarily to you.
- 6 Even if you have the time, can you deal objectively with negative comments some prospects may make about your home? Not everyone will share your taste in decor or appreciate your improvements.
- 7 Can you determine who among prospects is serious and has the necessary assets to buy, as opposed to someone who is merely making frivolous enquiries? You could be stuck with a buyer who can't get mortgage financing when the deal is about to close.
- 8 And speaking of mortgages, are you able to help a prospect arrange the necessary financing?
- 9 Are you conversant with the many laws and regulations that affect property ownership? You could find yourself in some difficulty with a buyer to whom you've not disclosed certain facts because you didn't know about them.

Most people feel they have neither the time nor the skills to undertake the sale of a home. They prefer to rely on REALTORS — licensed or registered real estate specialists who are members of their local real estate board.

REALTORS can answer 'yes' to all the above questions. REALTOR services make the transfer of property from one owner to another as painless as possible for all concerned. REALTORS can put an army of salespeople to work selling your home through the Multiple Listing Service (MLS) but you deal with only one person — the REALTOR you select. And, you'll pay that REALTOR not one cent unless or until your house is sold, no matter how long it stays on the market.

REALTORS subscribe to a strict Code of Ethics. They work in the communities where they live. The most successful among them do well because they generate repeat business from satisfied clients.

Want to sell your home? Contact your local REALTOR.

... that can make a REAL difference!

REALTOR is a registered certification mark which identifies real estate licensees who are members of the Haliburton District Real Estate Board and adhere to a strict Code of Ethics and Standards of Business Practice.

Generous donations for Bowrom Home

Members of the Minden Museum committee are excited about some generous donations to the Bowrom Home made by Don Crowe, owner of Kawartha Dairy.

Don has given the museum a pair of whiffle trees, a hand-operated wooden washing machine, a hay-lift for bales of hay, their choice of ironware cooking ware for the kitchen, a spinning wheel and a wooden churn.

Another priceless donation is a large whetstone used outside in the lumber camps and a smaller whetstone. Frank Codlin donated a set of three flat irons complete with wooden handles and we are picking up the rug from Judy Chapman this week which she made for the parlour of the Bowron Home.

The chimney for the summer kitchen, made of century bricks is now completed and partially rests on a replica of a pioneer broom cupboard. The upstairs walls are completed ready for authentic whitewash.

Our ladies have chosen heritage wallpaper for the lower bedroom and parlour. The purchasing committee has selected furniture for the parlour while Bob Harrington and Dick Kirkwood are re-finishing kitchen chairs. Dick will then re-finish the authentic spindle bed generously donated by Mrs. Brady. If you have items which you are willing to sell or donate, please contact us.

Our official opening will be at 2 p.m. on June 30. Don Shortreed, Bill Scott, John Eakins and Mike Maher have been contacted.

Our committee will be dressed in heritage style costume and Sinc Nesbitt will try to have his horses and wagon available to provide free rides to the museum from the town centre.

The museum committee assisted by Guides and Brownies will serve strawberry shortcake and beverages. Tickets are available for this heritage style treat at $3 from museum members or telephone Stan Hill 286-3969 to reserve a ticket.

Special programs will be organized by Leo Dobzensky each Tuesday and Thursday during the summer from the Bowron Home.

"WHERE THE ACTION IS"

Around The County Town

by Mary Scott Call 286-1104

It is hoped that this article will be of interest to our readers. Sterilizing soil: A microwave oven can sterilize potting soil, researchers at the University of Kentucky say. They used a microwave oven to sterilize up to 10 pounds at a time. (In our smaller ovens it is suggested that smaller amounts be done at a time.) The soil should be moist and crumbly, not squishy. Place soil in a large, loosely covered, microwaveable mixing bowl. For about 2 pounds (one kilogram) of soil, microwave at high 100 per cent power for 2 1/2 minutes. Stir part way through for even heating. Heating moisture in the soil to a high enough temperature for a long enough time kills most soil diseases. Doubling the time may be necessary to sterilize compost or leaf mould. After microwaving, let soil stand, uncovered, until cool. Then use or store in sealed containers. This tip was recommended by Mark Cullen of Weall and Cullen Nurseries.

IN MEMORIAM

WARBURTON. In loving memory of our darling daughter Donna-Lynn who passed away April 29, 1965.

There is a bridge of golden memories.
From here to heaven above.
It keeps you very close to us.
It's called a bridge of love.
Every day no matter where Deep in our hearts you are always there.
Forget you, Donna, we never will,
You left a place no one can fill.
Our love for you will always keep,
It cannot fade it lies too deep.
Our hearts still ache as we whisper low,
God bless you Donna we love you so.
Love's greatest gift is remembrance.

Ever remembered and missed by Mom and Dad.

IN MEMORIAM

STEVENSON. In loving memory of our niece Lola who left us April 23, 1986.

Like falling leaves the years drift by
But precious memories never die
You live with us in memory still
Not just today, but always will.

Remembered with love in our daily thoughts Auntie Ev & Uncle Jimmie.

The good years we had together
And the times we shared with you.
